Welcome to Symphony Center!

On January 15, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Zell Music Director Riccardo Muti embarked for Asia on its sixty-first international tour. This tour includes concerts in Taipei, Taiwan; Shanghai and Beijing, China; and Tokyo and Osaka, Japan. The five concerts in Tokyo include two special performances of Verdi’s Requiem, for which the Orchestra is joined by the Tokyo Opera Singers chorus and a distinguished cast of soloists. In addition to concerts, members of the Orchestra perform in schools, community centers, and hospitals with the support of the Negaunee Music Institute. Touring allows the CSO to share its incredible musicianship internationally, thereby expanding its influence and serving as an exemplary cultural ambassador for the city of Chicago.

While the CSO travels, Symphony Center Presents brings the world to Chicago, welcoming the Royal Concertgebouw Orchestra from Amsterdam and hosting the annual Chinese New Year Celebration featuring the Hubei Chime Bells National Chinese Orchestra and the China National Peking Opera Company. The SCP Jazz series continues its twenty-fifth season with the Joshua Redman Quartet and the Anat Cohen Tentet performing a new concerto by Oded Lev-Ari entitled Triple Helix, a Symphony Center Presents Jazz series co-commission with Carnegie Hall.

When the CSO returns to Chicago, it is joined by conductor Pablo Heras-Casado and pianist Simon Trpčeski for Tchaikovsky’s First Symphony and Rachmaninov’s Third Piano Concerto. The CSO at the Movies series continues with a one-night-only performance of Hitchcock’s North by Northwest, and the free All-Access Chamber Music series features CSO members performing music by Khachaturian, Glinka, and Taneyev.

In this program book, you will find an introduction to our upcoming 2019–20 season. By subscribing, you can guarantee your best options to participate in what will surely be a season to remember. We look forward to many concerts with you in 2019 and in the years ahead!

RICCARDO MUTI
ZELL MUSIC DIRECTOR
SYMPHONY CENTER PRESENTS
2019–20 SEASON
On January 29, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra Association announced its 2019–20 season. Zell Music Director Riccardo Muti, in his tenth season as music director, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will honor the 250th anniversary of the birth of Ludwig van Beethoven (1770–1827) by performing a complete cycle of his iconic symphonies. Famously described by musicologist Donald J. Grout as, “a colossus astride the two centuries,” Beethoven synthesized the tradition that preceded him and created an awesome wake that would influence all music to follow.

It will be a remarkable experience to explore each symphony through the interpretive powers of Riccardo Muti paired with the expressive capabilities of the CSO. This cycle includes their first performances together of the First, Third (Eroica), and Sixth (Pastoral) symphonies. The season culminates in a finale performance of the Ninth Symphony, a work that the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus last performed with Muti to great acclaim and worldwide attention in 2014. (You can watch this performance on YouTube. It has garnered more than 14 million views [and counting] to date!) “We should all become brothers and sisters,” says Riccardo Muti. “This is the message of Beethoven’s Ninth Symphony. . . . For two hundred and fifty years, we have tried to find the secret behind the untouchable music of this divine architect and to comprehend the enormity of his timeless philosophical, spiritual, and human message.”

This Beethoven celebration extends to performances of concertos, chamber music, and works for solo piano. The Symphony Center Presents (SCP) Piano series includes all thirty-two sonatas, featuring renowned interpreters in recitals that span the Sunday series as well as three additional evenings. A poet of the piano, Beethoven established much of his reputation on keyboard works of great originality and pathos that continue to resonate with listeners.
and merit new interpretations and re-listening. Performances feature pianists Evgeny Kissin, Igor Levit, Kirill Gerstein, and Maurizio Pollini, as well as Sir András Schiff and Rudolf Buchbinder, each of whom will perform two sonata programs. Mitsuko Uchida is also featured in a program that includes the composer’s Six Bagatelles, op. 126, and Diabelli Variations, op. 120.

Throughout its history, the CSO has introduced the work of contemporary composers to its audiences. This season includes world premieres of CSO-commissioned works by Mead Composer-in-Residence Missy Mazzoli, Nicholas Bacri, and Pulitzer Prize–winner Bernard Rands. The CSO also performs the U.S. premiere of Avner Dorman’s new percussion concerto, Eternal Rhythm, featuring principal percussion Cynthia Yeh. Additionally, the Orchestra performs music by a number of American composers including Florence Price, William Grant Still, John Adams, James Lee III, and Jennifer Higdon, as well as former CSO Mead Composer-in-Residence Mason Bates.

2018 Chicago Youth in Music Festival

The Chicago Youth in Music Festival (CYMF) is an annual celebration of young musicians from across the city and suburbs. Presented in partnership with Greater Chicago’s leading community music schools and youth orchestras, the 2019 CYMF will take place throughout the month of February and early March. This year the festival features activities that will strengthen community connections to the CSO and the Civic Orchestra and support and inspire young musicians who are passionate about classical music.

CPS High School String Convening with Civic Orchestra
String orchestras from five Chicago Public Schools partner high schools will come together at Symphony Center to perform in Orchestra Hall, receive coaching and feedback, and join forces for a combined orchestra with members of the Civic Orchestra of Chicago. CPS high school orchestra directors will also have the opportunity to share with one another, and they will participate in a professional development session with the CPS Department of Arts.

Participating ensembles are Amundsen High School Advanced Orchestra, Kenwood Academy High School Orchestra, Lane Tech Honors Sinfonietta, Mather High School Orchestra, and Senn High School Orchestra.

CSO Percussion Scholars Performance for CPS
Open to CPS students grades 4–8, this performance will feature the outstanding playing of the CSO’s Percussion Scholars. Since 1995, the Percussion Scholarship Program (PSP) has offered intensive, weekly percussion instruction on a full-scholarship basis to Chicago youth in grades 3–12. Students are selected for the program through a competitive application process that includes a provisional period followed by an invitation to participate through eighth grade. Select students are invited to continue through high school. PSP boasts a roster of alumni who have gone on to some of the nation’s finest colleges, universities, and conservatories, later assuming notable careers within and outside the music field.

Community Youth Orchestra Convening with Civic Orchestra
Young musicians from The People’s Music School, Chicago Metamorphosis Orchestra, and Sistema Ravinia will gather at Symphony Center to participate in sectionals and a side-by-side rehearsal with members of the Civic Orchestra of Chicago under the direction of Allen Tinkham.

Crain-Maling Foundation CSO Young Artists Competition Finals
Since 1919, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra Youth Auditions have featured the most talented young soloists from across Illinois. Now known as the Crain-Maling CSO Young Artists Competition, this newly reimagined concerto competition will identify one outstanding young performer to be featured in a CSO School Concert during the 2019–20 season. A preliminary round for woodwind, brass, percussion, and harp applicants will take place on Saturday, February 2, 2019. Four finalists will compete onstage in Orchestra Hall, accompanied by the Civic Orchestra of Chicago conducted by Andrew Grams. This competition is generously funded by the Crain-Maling Foundation.

The live final round will take place on Saturday, February 23, at 2 p.m. Reserve your free tickets at cso.org or call Patron Services at 312-294-3000.

CSO and Symphony Chorus Master Classes
Throughout February and March, several advanced high school musicians studying at local music organizations will have the opportunity to participate in thirteen instrumental and four vocal master classes led by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. These events will take place in spaces throughout Symphony Center, and are open for other young musicians and their families to attend and observe.

Partner organizations include Chicago Youth Symphony Orchestras, Elgin Youth Symphony Orchestra, Merit School of Music, Midwest Young Artists, and Music Institute of Chicago.

CYMF is presented by the Negaunee Music Institute at the CSO. Participation in the festival and all related events are offered free of charge and target diverse audiences. Learn more at cso.org/cymf.

Fall in Love with Music
October 19, 2018

The ninth annual Fall in Love with Music event took place on Friday, October 19, 2018. This is a unique fundraising event presented each year by the League of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra Association. This year, Fall in Love with Music took place at the University Club of Chicago and featured an intimate discussion with conductor Marin Alsop, the first female music director of a major American orchestra; and the award-winning composer Bruno Mantovani, whose CSO-commissioned Threnos received its world premiere with Alsop and the CSO in concerts on October 18–20. At the event, CSO musicians Max Raimi and Danny Lai performed original viola duets composed by Raimi. In addition, the world-renowned concert pianist Daniil Trifonov joined the attendees for dinner. In past years, Fall in Love with Music has been a luncheon event, but this year the evening began at 4:30 P.M. with a cocktail hour preceding the discussion and performance, followed by a plated, three-course dinner. Over $56,000 was raised, and a wonderful time was had by all!

Mikhail Glinka was born into a noble family and educated for a life in government service. His real interest was music, though, and he studied informally beginning in childhood. On a visit to the Caucasus in 1823, he discovered the treasures of Russian folk song from the local peasants, and grew more determined to become a professional musician. During four tedious years of service in the Ministry of Roads and Communications, he studied composition and performance with several noted teachers. By early 1830, he recalled, “The idea of traveling abroad has occurred to me. This desire, born of the hope of ending the miseries of my poor health and of perfecting my music, was intensified by my reading of travel books.” That same year, Glinka departed to the sunny south and arrived in Milan in early fall. He settled into a comfortable flat on the city’s main thoroughfare and promptly set about insinuating himself into Milanese musical and social life. Glinka took some lessons with the director of the Milan Conservatory; made extended excursions to Venice, Rome, and Naples; composed a little; and haunted the opera houses to imbibe the works of Rossini, Zingarelli, Donizetti, and Bellini.

His health problems persisted, however, and during the summer of 1832, he recounted,

My doctor, De Filippi, thought it wise to move me out of Milan, where it had become too hot. He had a married daughter living in the village of Lainate. She was a very tall woman with a pleasant, expressive face. Moreover, she had been excellently educated, and played the piano so well that she was visited by the best artists, including Chopin. I visited De Filippi’s daughter frequently, and began for her a work for piano and strings . . . . I had to cease my frequent visits to the lady because they were exciting suspicion and gossip.

As a musical pendant to this wrecked affair of the heart, Glinka wrote the Trio pathétique and noted on the score, “The only way I know love is by the pain it causes.” He read through the piece in December with two friends from the La Scala orchestra, after which the clarinetist exclaimed, “Ah, but that is desperation.” Though Glinka won his historical niche for establishing a distinctive voice for Russian music, the works of leading Italian composers were among the most significant influences on his mature style. His Trio pathétique displays not only the extent to which he assimilated those Italian idioms, but also the solid training and skill he brought to his craft. The trio opens with a dramatic gesture that is immediately repeated. The main theme, an arching melody begun by the clarinet, is then taken over by the piano and cello. A climax, pause, and ensuing triplet passage lead to another lyrical duet by the piano and cello and more triplet figurations. Utilizing a common Italian technique for instrumental movements, Glinka omits the formal development section and after a brief silence, the recapitulation of earlier themes proceeds. The music settles on an inconclusive harmony before launching into the scherzo, which is a playful affair balanced by a lifting central trio. After an abrupt break, a passage of ominous chords leads to the Largo: a wordless, three-verse operatic scene sung first by the clarinet, then by cello, and finally, together. The finale is comprised of four succinct episodes: an aggressive introduction whose tumbling triplets hearken back to the first movement, an agitated conversation between the clarinet and cello, a recall of the dramatic gesture that opened the work, and a passionate coda of troubled emotion.

ARAM KHACHATURIAN
Born June 6, 1903; Tbilisi, Georgia
Died May 1, 1978; Moscow, Russia

Trio for Clarinet, Violin, and Piano in G Minor

Aram Khachaturian was one of the leading composers of the Soviet Union and the most celebrated musician of his native country. He had virtually no formal training in music when he arrived in Moscow in 1921 to study biology at the university, but his musical gifts were recognized while taking cello lessons, and he was accepted as a composition student. Khachaturian’s first published works date from 1926; he entered the Moscow Conservatory three years later. His international reputation was established in 1936 with the success of his Piano Concerto. Khachaturian’s colleague Dmitri Kabalevsky wrote, “The especially attractive features of Khachaturian’s music are in its roots in national folk fountainheads. Khachaturian’s musical language, vivid and dynamic, with keen contrasts, is enchanting in its mellow lyricism and stirring in its tension and drama.”

Khachaturian may have started his music studies late, but he quickly developed his own distinctive creative voice, which was fully formed by the time he wrote his Trio for Clarinet, Violin, and Piano. Sergei Prokofiev heard the piece and recommended its immediate publication, and the score appeared simultaneously in Moscow and Paris. Khachaturian was accepted into the Soviet Composers Union later that year.

The trio’s instrumentation is Khachaturian’s concert-hall analogue of a typical folk band from his native land. The pervasive influence of traditional Armenian music on the work is likewise reflected in its thematic material, full of exotic modalism, florid ornamentation, and short, recurring phrases. The opening movement, marked to be played with sadness and much expression, is based on a plangent melody and sounds over a drone-like accompaniment. Its three varied stanzas are led in turn by clarinet, violin, and piano. The second movement is structured as a formal arch of A–B–C–B–A. The “frame” at the beginning and end is brief and scherzo-like. The movement’s snapping, rhythmic main theme—given by the clarinet with an obbligato line in the violin—is in the nature of a slow, sinuous dance melody. The central portion is a fantasia on the theme in a quicker tempo, and the trio’s finale is a set of free variations on a succinct, folkish melody presented by the clarinet at the outset. The music fades to silence at the end, as though the players are setting off to carry their music to the next village.
One of the most prodigiously talented musicians of late imperial Russia, Sergei Taneyev was born into the family of a cultured and affluent civil servant. He began piano studies at the age of five, and entered the Moscow Conservatory before his tenth birthday. There, he studied piano with Nikolai Rubinstein and composition with Pyotr Tchaikovsky. Upon his graduation in 1875, Taneyev became the first student to win gold medals in both performance and composition from the school, and when Tchaikovsky resigned from the faculty in 1878, Taneyev—then twenty-two years old—took his place teaching harmony and orchestration. He soon added piano and composition instruction to his duties, and in 1885 became the conservatory’s director. He resigned as director in 1889 to give more time to composition, but continued to teach counterpoint until 1905, when he left in protest over the repressive discipline meted out to students involved in disturbances at the school (sparked by the revolutionary movement then sweeping Russia). Taneyev withdrew into a reclusive existence, and lived in a rather primitive house in a distant suburb of Moscow. Though he posted a sign on his residence claiming “Sergei Ivanovich is not at home,” students and friends visited him often, and usually were received with a warm welcome. He spent the next years composing and writing a treatise on counterpoint that still serves as an important text on the subject in Russia’s music schools. He was elected to honorary membership in the Russian Musical Society in 1913. In 1915, Taneyev stood in the rain at the funeral of his former student, Alexander Scriabin, contracted pneumonia, and died of a heart attack just a few months later.

The Piano Quintet in G minor opens with a somber introduction that contains the work’s thematic seeds. A trilled chord, freshening of the tempo, and presentation of the agitated main theme mark the start of the movement’s sonata form. In a brighter key, the tender subsidiary subject is largely entrusted to the piano. The development section takes the exposition’s ideas and applies a variety of treatments that range from dramatic to ruminative, before a full recapitulation of the earlier themes and a fiery coda round out the movement. The scherzo utilizes a march-like theme and a mercurial strain with scintillating rhythms as the materials for its outer sections. A lyrical and rhapsodic central episode provides formal contrast and expressive balance. The Largo takes the form of a revived baroque passacaglia. It drapes a continuous flow of music across a constantly repeating scalar phrase, which is most often heard descending in the bass. The finale is comprised of two large structural paragraphs: the first is tense and tightly compressed; the second, which recalls themes from the first movement, is expansive, optimistic, and brings the quintet to a jubilant close.

Richard E. Rodda, a former faculty member at Case Western Reserve University and the Cleveland Institute of Music, provides program notes for many American orchestras, concert series, and festivals.
Civitas Ensemble

Founded in 2011, the Civitas Ensemble possesses a threefold mission: to engage audiences with performances of new and traditional works, to inspire young classical musicians, and to bring the healing power of music to those with limited access to live performances. The group performs in hospitals, retirement living facilities, and Chicago schools; in recognition of its community engagement efforts, it was invited to perform with Yo-Yo Ma at the 2012 Chicago Humanities Festival. Civitas has performed at Millennium Park’s Pritzker Pavilion, as part of Chicago’s Loops and Variations series, and on WFMT-FM. The group also is in residence with the Chinese Fine Arts Society.

The musicians of Civitas nurture relationships with living composers, and often commission new works. In 2016, the ensemble participated in Chicago’s inaugural Ear Taxi Festival and gave the world premiere of a piece written for it by David Clay Mettens. In 2017, Civitas commissioned a new work by Lukas Sommer, which premiered in Prague and Chicago as part of the ensemble’s yearlong Alla Zingarese collaboration with Czech violinist Pavel Šporcl and the Gipsy Way Ensemble. Most recently, the group recorded and gave the world premiere of Augusta Read Thomas’s Plea for Peace as part of a symposium at the University of Chicago.

The Civitas Ensemble’s 2018–19 season marks its eighth year as ensemble-in-residence at Valparaiso University’s Music School. In October and November 2017, the group performed French repertoire at Chicago’s Merit School of Music and Driehaus Museum. The ensemble performs repertoire that spans four centuries, as well as numerous genres and styles. Its first recording, a collaboration with the Gipsy Way Ensemble, Alla Zingarese, was released in 2018.

Yuan-Qing Yu Violin

An internationally acclaimed violinist, Yuan-Qing Yu joined the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in 1995. A year later, Daniel Barenboim appointed her assistant concertmaster. She leads an active life as a soloist, chamber musician, teacher, and music advocate.

A native of Shanghai, China, Yuan-Qing Yu won the Chinese National Violin Competition at the age of seventeen. The following year, she captured second prize in the Menuhin Competition. She was awarded the grand prize in the International Holland Music Sessions Competition two years later, and also took the third grand prize in the Jacques Thibaud International Competition in Paris.

Yuan-Qing Yu has given many critically acclaimed performances as a featured soloist with the CSO, the Monte Carlo Philharmonic, Radio France Philharmonic, and the London City Orchestra. She has performed concertos under Christoph von Dohnányi, Yehudi Menuhin, and James DePreist, among others. Yu also has appeared in recital throughout the United States and Europe and collaborated with Daniel Barenboim, Pinchas Zukerman, Menahem Pressler, Lang Lang, and Yo-Yo Ma. In 2011, Yuan-Qing Yu and her CSO colleagues founded the Civitas Ensemble.

Yuan-Qing Yu teaches at the Chicago College of Performing Arts at Roosevelt University and Northwestern University’s Bienen School of Music.
Ni Mei Violin

Ni Mei joined the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in 2009. She came to the CSO from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, where she was a member of the first violin section. A native of China, Mei began playing violin at the age of six. Her first teacher was her father, the concertmaster and later music director of the Wuhan Philharmonic Orchestra. At ten, she entered the Shanghai Conservatory of Music, where she studied for eleven years under Duoqin Xu, Shisheng Zheng, and Zhinuo Ding.

Mei came to the United States to continue her violin studies at Pittsburg State University in Kansas and at Rice University in Houston, where she studied with Kathleen Winkler. During that time, she won Pittsburg State’s Concerto-Aria Competition, the Waddill Chamber Music Competition, and first prize in the Young Texas Artists Competition. Mei also was concertmaster of the Southeast Kansas Orchestra, associate concertmaster of the Ohio Light Opera, and a member of the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

Wei-Ting Kuo Viola

A native of Taiwan, Wei-Ting Kuo has been a member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra since his 2014 appointment by music director Riccardo Muti. From 2011 to 2014, he served as assistant principal viola of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra. Kuo began his viola studies at the age of nine, and on completion of his army service in Taiwan, came to the United States at the age of twenty-four. While a student, he was invited to perform as part of the Taos Music Festival, Ravinia Festival, and the Verbier Festival Academy. His competition experience includes selection as a 2008 finalist in the Primrose International Viola Competition and two awards from the 2009 Tokyo International Viola Competition.

An active soloist and chamber musician, Kuo has performed throughout Asia with violist Nobuko Imai in both capacities. He also has worked with Frank Almond, Nai-Yuan Hu, Menahem Pressler, and the Arcas Quartet, in addition to a concerto performance in 2014 with the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra. Kuo earned a bachelor’s degree with a minor in piano performance from the National Taiwan Normal University in Taipei, a master’s degree from the Mannes School of Music in New York, and an artist diploma from the Colburn School in Los Angeles. He has studied with Paul Coletti, Hsin-Yun Huang, and Yizhak Schotten. Kuo joined DePaul University’s viola faculty in 2017.

Kenneth Olsen Cello

Kenneth Olsen joined the Chicago Symphony Orchestra as assistant principal cello in 2005. He is a graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Music and winner of the school’s prestigious concerto competition.

Other awards include first prize in the Nakamichi Cello Competition at the Aspen Music Festival and second prize at the 2002 Holland-America Music Society Competition. His teachers have included Richard Aaron at the Cleveland Institute of Music, Joel Krosnick at the Juilliard School of Music, and Luis Garcia-Renart at Bard College. He also has been a participant at the Ravinia Festival’s Steans Institute for Young Artists and at Boston University’s Tanglewood Institute.

A native of New York, Olsen is a founding member of the East Coast Chamber Orchestra, which consists of young musicians from ensembles nationwide.
In 1980, Sir Georg Solti invited J. Lawrie Bloom to join the Chicago Symphony Orchestra as clarinet and solo bass clarinet. He previously held similar appointments with the Phoenix Symphony, Lyric Opera of Chicago, and Vancouver and Cincinnati symphony orchestras.

Bloom has been heard in chamber, orchestral, and concerto appearances on soprano, basset, and bass clarinets. He began studying piano at the age of four, and five years later switched to clarinet. He continued his studies at the Columbus Boychoir School under the guidance of Roger McKinney, and later studied with Anthony Gigliotti.

The founder and artistic codirector of the Chesapeake Chamber Music Festival and its competition, Bloom frequently performs at the Northwestern University Winter Chamber Festival, and on the CSO's chamber music and MusicNOW series. He also is a founding member of the Civitas Ensemble.

Bloom's engagements have included performances at the Ambler, Grand Teton, Ravinia, Skaneateles, Spoleto, and Mostly Mozart festivals. He has collaborated with the Orpheus Chamber Orchestra; the Chester, Chicago Symphony, and Mendelssohn string quartets; the Chicago Chamber Musicians; and members of the Ridge, Orion, and Vermeer string quartets. He often has been heard live on WFMT-FM and via the Australian Broadcasting Company.

A senior lecturer in clarinet at Northwestern University, Bloom has presented master classes worldwide. He also is an artist performer for clarinet manufacturers Buffet Crampon USA and the reed company Rico International.

Christopher Guzman regularly performs as a soloist and chamber musician for audiences throughout North America, Europe, and Asia. He has received multiple prizes from many international competitions, including the Walter W. Naumburg Foundation Competition, the Seoul International Music Competition, and the Isang Yun Competition. Guzman recently won the grand prize and several others at the Orléans International Piano Competition. As a result, he regularly travels to France to perform in Paris and throughout the Loire Valley. His recording of music by composer Paul Reale, Chopin's Ghosts, was included in Fanfare magazine's top–5 releases of 2018. Guzman's career has taken him to such venues as Tokyo's Suntory Hall, London's Wigmore Hall, Leipzig's Gewandhaus, the Kennedy Center in Washington (D.C.), and Carnegie Hall's Weill Hall. He has collaborated with some of the world's most exciting musicians, including Ilya Gringolts, Antoine Tamestit, David Fray, and Jeremy Denk. Guzman also continues to work with many of the nation's preeminent new-music ensembles, and his performances have included world premieres of music by Donald Martino, Nico Muhly, and Paul Schoenfield. He currently is associate professor of piano at Penn State University in State College, Pennsylvania.

Foundation Spotlight

The Pauls Foundation

Through its mission to support arts organizations with funding that makes a marked difference in their ability to offer programming to people in Chicago and beyond, The Pauls Foundation strives to reach as many organizations as possible whose work has a significant and meaningful impact through the arts. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra Association appreciates the opportunity to partner with the foundation in support of advanced music studies and professional development for Civic Orchestra of Chicago musicians. This season, The Michael G. Woll Fund at The Pauls Foundation supports five Civic Fellows: Devin Gossett, Bryant Millet, Lucas Steidinger, Renee Vogen, and Kelsey Williams.

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra Association and the Civic Orchestra of Chicago thank The Pauls Foundation for its generosity and commitment to supporting the next generation of classical musicians.
